THE PROFESSIONAL Regulation Commission has come up with a formula that it believes will put to rest the cheating controversy surrounding the June nursing board exams—maintaining that “passers” will not retake the exams, and nullifying 90 of the 100 questions under Test V.

‘With 2 to 3 typhoons, this will normalize’

WITH TWO TO THREE TYPHOONS, THIS will normalize,” Science Undersecretary Guillermo Natal Jr. yesterday said of the number of typhons in Western Visayas.

Scientists have expressed confidence that the waves would actually wash out the bunker fuel oil from the tanker MT Solar 1, which has spilled beaches, poisoned mangroves and contaminated the rich fishing grounds in the region.

Not 200,000 liters but 1.3 million liters have leaked out of the tanker tanker, according to Manila.

MT Solar 1 was carrying 1.3 million liter of bunker fuel oil when it went down on Aug. 11 in Guimaras Strait, according to the Philippine Coast Guard (PCG).

The PCG estimated that the amount of oil that had leaked from the tanker vessel since it sank on Aug. 11 was between 200,000 and 300,000 liters.

Natal also said that out 220 km but only 90.6 km of coastline were affected by the oil spill.

Citing radar satellite images and educated estimates by scientists, Natal gave the new numbers that indicated the oil spill, which

Captain erred, says shipping firm head

By Leticia B. Salaverria

THE CAPTAIN OF MY SOLAR 1 MADE A “wrong decision” when he ordered his voyage to Zamboanga del Sur amid bad weather that caused it to sink, according to the president of tanker owner New Asia Maritime Development Corp.

Testifying before the Special Board of Marine Inquiry, Sunshine Maritime president Clemente Canalis said it was Captain Rodolfo Aguirre's own decision to set sail for Zamboanga after seeking shelter at the Davao anchorage area near Guimaras to escape rough seas and to check on the condition of the tanker.

The sinking of the tanker has led to a massive oil spill in Western Visayas, which was declared a national calamity by President Macapagal-Arroyo.

“In hindsight, I would believe he made the wrong decision,” Canalis, referring to Aguirre, said in response to a question from the SIBMI chief, Rear Admiral Daniel Alang.

Alang asked Canalis if he thought it would have been preferable for Aguirre to wait for the weather to improve before going to Zamboanga. Canalis answered that the company's safety officers had given Aguirre the discretion on whether to go or stay put when he had sought shelter.

Canalis said the safety officer had asked Aguirre whether everything was all right, and the latter said it was and proceeded with the voyage.

Pressed whether he believed the captain's decision was wrong, Canalis said he thought as much.

Aguirre testified the other day that the tanker encountered bad weather off An

Probers tag soldiers in Albay pastor's murder

By Christian Y. Espinosa

FOR A CHRISTIAN BACKGROUND, MURKIN, the Military Commission should find little difficulty identifying those behind the murder of a United Methodist pastor in Davao, Albay.

Witnesses gathered by the 12-member team from the United Methodist Church pointed to soldiers of the Army's 9th Infantry Division as the killers of Pastor Juanito S. Bana, 47, who was killed with gunfire by 18 masked men on Aug. 3 outside his house at Bantagan Malabago.

Sgt. Bana was a member of the United Methodist Church in Bantagan.

“The action was officially sanctioned by the military and in fact followed the chain of command,” lawyer Eglemar Cordero, a member of the investigating team, said in a press conference yesterday.

Cordero said the team investigated the case from Aug. 12 to 14 and was prepared to turn over its evidence to the commission headed by former Supreme Court Justice Jose Melo that was tasked by President Macapagal-Arroyo to look into extrajudicial killings.

Police offer to protect businessmen from NPA

By Luigi A. del Puerto

POLICE YESTERDAY OFFERED protection to businessmen who are targets of extortion by the communist New People's Army in exchange for information that could be used to neutralize the rebels.

“We are open to their reporting to us, if they are victims of extortion by the NPA, and we will guarantee their protection,” Philippine National Police Director General Oscar Caldeira said.

The identity of the businessmen will be guarded, said Caldeira a day after Albayano Rep. Dina Rosales denounced the NPA for allegedly engaging in “downright gangsterism” after a rebel group torched a truck belonging to a Bantay City company that rehired to pay millions in “revolutionary taxes.”

Police have stepped out as—namely in southern and central Luzon, Basil and Cagayan Valley—where the alleged extensive activities of the NPA, the armed wing of the Communist Party of the Philippines, are reportedly rampant.

Caldeira called these areas the “milking grounds that provide the NPA a financial support system.”

The Armed Forces has estimated that the rebels are collecting at least P10 million monthly in Mindanao, P20 million in Central Luzon, and about the same amount in southern Luzon.

Another source of communist funding is the fees paid by politicians in order to campaign in guerrilla-infested areas during elections.

India taxman shows way in fight against corruption

By Fe Zamora

A WORLD FREE OF BRIBES IS IMPOSSIBLE, but people can always dream of one where they can fight corruption and injustice.

Ashish Rajgopal, a tax collector in New Delhi and one of this year's Ramon Magsaysay awarders, yesterday showed how his countryman empowered themselves by demanding transparency in all government transactions.

Rajgopal, 38, said ordinary citizens had been able to demand full accounting of government projects by invoking the Right to Information Act which the Indian government enacted in 2001.

“Right to information is about activating India's right to information movement on the grass-roots level, empowering the citizen's power to fight corruption by holding the government accountable,” the Ramon Magsaysay Award Foundation will render on Rajgopal today the 2006 Ramon Magsaysay Award for International Leadership. Show your faces, Gonzalez tells UP naked runners

By Kenneth H. Mosen

TAKE OFF YOUR MASKS AND SHOW YOUR FACES.

The day after the arrest of Senator Benigno Aquino III, the Philippine Inquirer newspaper reported that the senator had been seen in a public place, wearing a mask, and that he was not alone.

"There's nothing I would have a high regard for if they will wear these masks," Gonzalez said. "I would like to see the senator's face."

Gonzalez, who is the head of the UP, said that he was not alone when he was seen in a public place. He said that he was with a group of people, and that they were all wearing masks.

"They should remove their masks to show that they are not ashamed of themselves... of what they are doing. Why are they covering their faces? Gonzalez said in a telephone interview with the Inquirer.

Palparan replacement to try new tack vs Reds

By Desha Penabazogues

A LAFAYETTE ARMY GENERAL, embroiled with Balab's insurgent forces locked in a stalemate in a remote, mountainous area, is expected to replace the commander of the 7th Infantry Division in General Luzon, where military forces are engaged in a long-term battle of attrition.

Big, thin, Amable Gomez, 54, will replace Palparan as commander of the 7th Infantry Division in General Luzon, where military forces are engaged in a long-term battle of attrition.

In recent weeks, thousands of people had been killed in the region, and the military had been accused of human rights violations. Gomez's mission is to win the support of the local population and to bring the region back under control.

Gomez, who has been appointed to the post as the National Capital Region's military commander, was transferred by the Defense Department to replace Palparan because of his success in leading the commander of the 7th Infantry Division.

"It is a fresh approach," said Defense Secretary Arroyo. "Gomez is a proven leader and a proven commander. He is a proven leader and a proven commander."

Local approach
General Gomez and his staff will be in the region for a long time. They will be working with the local population and the military to bring the region back under control.

"We are not going to use force to bring the region back under control," Gomez said. "We are going to use a fresh approach."

Palace to help Joe-Joe
By GIC Calacangan, Jr.

MANAGONGIEN is sending wrong in its sending "assistance" to former Agriculture Undersecretary Jose "Joe-Joe" Calacangan Jr. who has been in detention in the US for suspected bid-rigging.

Former Secretary Eduardo Ermita said it was only "necessary" that the Palace officers Secretary Alberto Fernandez Jr. to receive the Philippine Consulate general in Detroit.

Palace's lawyers and family members had submitted the Philippine Embassy in Washington that he was suffering from environmental health that require urgent and specialized medical attention that might not be available in his detention facility at the National County Detention Center in California.

Ermita, however, said he had no personal knowledge of Calacangan's release.

The OIC confirmed yesterday that Calacangan might receive an immediate release.

"We are interested by him to help any Filipino who needs the Philippine government's help," OIC spokesman Calacangan said in a double entendre.

By GIC Calacangan, Jr.

Ermita expressed assurance at the House that the Philippine government will follow the orders of the Philippine court.

"We will follow the orders of the Philippine court," he said.

BCDA head orders probe of 'commission'

By Samira Ocampo
Inquirer Correspondent

BASES CONVERSION DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY president Nenecho Alaya said his agency would investigate claims of Central Luzon contractors that they paid between P1 million and P5 million to a BCDA official in exchange for non-competitive subcontracting in the P21-billion Subic-Bay Clark-Tarlac expressway project (SCTEP).

Alaya is a statement on Sunday, August 23, regarding the Commission on Government Procurement (CGP) to the Subic-Bay Clark-Tarlac Expressway (SCTEP) project. He said that he was not aware of any such payments and that he would investigate the allegations if the complainants will come forward and provide names, addresses.

This is the only way to determine whether, indeed, there were irregularities in competitive bids, the president said.

Alaya said he would gather representatives of the National Anti-Corruption Center (NACC) and the Philippine Commission on Government Procurement (CGP) and the Department of Justice to discuss the project and its status as a meeting "to discuss the talk."

'Let the axe fall'

"The talk is the one that will either be a 'let the axe fall' or not," he said.

Alaya said he had heard a rumor that he was in the past but he did not make any independent confirmation since there were no concrete complaints filed.

However, for competitive bids, industry and officials have often described the official allegations as a "let the axe fall" or not.

Chen, in every meeting because the project is in the hands of the government, and he is not in a position to make any decision.

"I am not surprised that you are completely honest in my work, when I please you, I do please you," he said.

"My conscience is clear. But I just hope that the project will proceed," he added.

They earlier denied the charges, saying his lawyers were trying to mislead him and wanted him out of office.

Alaya denied the accusations of any irregularities in the project, and he said he would not be involved in the project in the end of 2007, Alaya said.

he "trained his hands away from the project of some BCDA personnel who have regular jobs in various agencies."

A Palace source, privy to the president of what has come to be known among contractors as "Alaya's list," said one of those officials was then in Manila, Alaya said.

President Ma has identified the SCTEP as one of his administration's flagship projects.

It would be unusual that in Subic Bay, Clark and Pangasinan and various local roads have been built between the two former US military bases.

It was also seen as a catalyst for the growth of General Luna and a major project built in Subic Bay and its airport by the end of the next decade in Clark.

Farmers vow not to drop fight for coco levy

LUCENA, CITY—THE 100,000-member National Coconut Growers Association (NCGA), a nationwide organization of coconut farmers, vowed to continue the long and hard struggle to secure the constitutionally-mandated levy and to expand national representation in the government's proposed coco management agreement to the state.

"Farmers' struggle has been reaching more than 100 years, all the way from the time of the coconut industry in the early 20th century to the present," said NCGA president, and also the 100,000-member National Coconut Growers Association (NCGA).

DARAGANG MAGAYON

Woman victim or warrior?

 By Evelyn Aguilar
 Aguilar City

BEYOND MY MOTHER, RESIDING 2,402 meters above Bako, is a legend telling people that at the core of this magnificent and world-famous volcano, which has been dormant since 1999, is the heart of a woman longing to be free.

Magayon is located inside the Bako world heritage, which means "hallowed," and was used to name any of the most active volcanoes in the world for its more potent state stage.

According to folklore, Daragang Magayon (Beautiful Woman), the only daughter of a rich chief Makang (strong), gave up her life for her father and loved that man because she was in love with him.

But she was forbidden to fall in love with him, because she was a princess, a powerful chief and great warrior, could win her heart even if he showed her father with gifts.

One day Ulap (Cloud) came after a long while to see his beloved the volcano beauty of the mountain. Unlike other women, Ulap wanted to see her without being discovered by her father.

Knowing that his daughter was in love, Makang did not object to the love affair and advised his people to prepare a wedding feast.

The news, however, Peppage, who disliked Makang and loved her because Magayon was the most beautiful woman, was so angry that he decided to kill her. He wanted to see her without being discovered by her father.

Lessons on the wonders of Catalan cuisine

Attending a cooking class is a unique opportunity to learn first-hand that simplicity is the secret of Barcelona's traditional specialties

WITH FOOD BEING A major export, Girona, Barcelona, the second largest city in Spain and the Catalan capital, has become one of the country's most popular destinations. In fact, Singapore Airlines now flies to the Catalan capital three times a week via Singapore.

Catalan cuisine offers a range of gastronomic wonders to delight the palate. The region's cooking may be divided into two distinct types. People living in the mountains and hinterland ate a lot of meat and sausages, dairy products, game and mushrooms. Coastal areas ate mostly seafood, often accompanied by rice and vegetables.

To discover the secrets of traditional Catalan cuisine, its ingredients and origins, one can enroll in interactive cooking classes.

"For people who love to travel and cook, here is an opportunity to combine both passions while in Barcelona," says Josep Añellob, Catalonia tourism director for international savings.

The unsightly truth about tooth decay

TOOTH CARS, ALSO KNOWN AS cavity or dental caries, are holes that develop in the structure of teeth. The progression of dental caries is a gradual process, and the disease can lead to pain, tooth loss, infection, and even tooth abscess. An estimated 90 percent of schoolchildren worldwide and more adults have experienced dental caries, with the highest rates in the United States and Latin American countries and the lowest in African countries. In the United States, dental caries is the most prevalent childhood disease, at least the most severe manifestation. It is the most important cause of tooth loss in the U.S.

The number of cases has decreased in developed countries, and the disease is usually attributed to poor oral care and higher protein and protein-sugar content in the diet. However, in developing countries, where diets have not an overall decrease in dental caries prevalence, the disease is still a major public health problem. In children aged 5 to 17, 60 percent of upper teeth results in 31 percent of upper teeth.

Types of dental caries

Caries are classified based on location. Generally, there are two different types of caries: crown caries and root caries. Crown caries is the most common type and occurs on the crown of the tooth. Root caries is the second most common type and occurs on the root of the tooth.

Signs and symptoms

Early caries symptoms are painless and are not visible to the naked eye. The earliest sign of a cavity is the appearance of a white spot on the surface of the tooth, which is an area of demineralization of enamel. As the cavity continues to develop, it can turn brown and will eventually become a cavity. The cavity will then become a hole in the tooth, which can lead to pain and infection. The cavity will then become a hole in the tooth, which can lead to pain and infection.

In the earliest and deepest stages of decay, the caries can become more visible.

visible. The affected area of the tooth may change color and become soft to the touch. Over time, the decay spreads through enamel, the dentin, and finally reaches the pulp of the tooth. The pulp is the center of the tooth, where the nerve is located. The pulp can be damaged by heat, cold, or severe tooth decay. If the pulp is damaged, it can lead to pain and infection. The pulp can also become infected and die, which can lead to a tooth abscess. A tooth abscess is a collection of pus that forms at the base of the tooth. It can be very painful and can lead to infection.

Causes

There are four main factors in the formation of caries: a weak enamel (tooth structure), bacteria (cavities), carbohydrates (sugars), and time. The cavity process starts with bacteria in the mouth. Bacteria are found in the mouth and are a normal part of the oral flora. They are found in the mouth and are a normal part of the oral flora. Diagnosis

Many "bad teeth" are usually not the sign of caries. Dental caries is a condition that is usually not visible to the naked eye. As the cavity continues to develop, it can turn brown and will eventually become a cavity. The cavity will then become a hole in the tooth, which can lead to pain and infection.

In most patients, diagnosis of dental caries is made by a dentist. The dentist will examine the teeth and look for signs of decay. The dentist will also use a dental probe to check for decay. The dentist will also use a dental X-ray to check for decay. The dentist will also use a dental probe to check for decay. The dentist will also use a dental X-ray to check for decay.
